

SAID U.S. Civil War General William Sherman, as he described the ever-present scourge of humanity. And certainly, with few exceptions, mankind has never had any serious doubt that war is indeed a crucible that the world would be better off without.

Neville Chamberlain, British prime minister earlier this century, stated: "In war, whichever side may call itself the victor, there are no winners, but all are losers."

Perhaps a number of our readers have had, as I have, the opportunity to visit the headquarters of the United Nations organization in New York City. It is plain that the young guides are deeply

War is at best barbarism. . . . It is only those who have neither fired a shot nor heard the shrieks and groans of the wounded who cry aloud for blood, more vengeance, more desolation. War is hell.

—William Tecumseh Sherman (1820-1891)
